Capacities

Both performance spaces have flexible seating, which can be configured in a variety of ways and this affects the final capacity. Therefore, the following capacities are guidelines, based on the assumption that performances will take place on the stage only without any extension into audience space. Please note particularly that if a concert incorporates the use of one of our pianos, this necessitates a platform installed in front of the stage, which reduces the capacity. We are very happy to talk to hirers about using the space to the best potential for the event, upon which we can discuss the licensable capacity.

	Great Hall	Recital Room
Cabaret style seating	250	80
Formal theatre seating	600*	160
Standing	1000*	250

These capacity guidelines must include all performers and staff.

* When capacity reaches these levels in the Great Hall, we advise hirers to consider use of the Recital Room (if available) as auxiliary front of house and/or bar space. Extra hire charges for use of the whole building are negotiated on a case-by-case basis.

And finally – a little bit of History ...

Blackheath Halls, south east London's Grade II listed premier music venue, opened its doors in 1895: funded by local people to satisfy the need for a space that could accommodate large-scale concerts and meetings. Designed by William Webster, it is thought to be the earliest surviving purpose-built concert hall in London. In early years, the Halls hosted lectures by Sir Ernest Shackleton, Suffragette rallies and George Bernard Shaw pleaded from the stage for the establishment of a National Theatre.

During World War I it was commandeered by the Royal Army Pay Corps and reopened for public concerts in 1921. It was commandeered again in 1940 by the Ministry of Works during World War II, and from the 1950s it was used as DHSS offices. Following extensive restoration in the late 1970s and early 1980s, the Halls reopened as a concert venue in 1985, operating as a charitable trust to pursue the ethos of its Victorian founders. In 2003 Blackheath Halls became a wholly-owned subsidiary of Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance; it now continues to run a varied programme of high profile music and comedy events, a wide-reaching Community Engagement programme and Trinity Laban student performances. The Halls are also in demand as the preferred recording and rehearsal venue from leading orchestras and opera companies including Chandos Records, English National Opera and London Symphony Orchestra.

In its early years, the Halls played host to many renowned early 20th century composers and artists such as Sir Edward Elgar, Percy Grainger, Dame Clara Butt, Fritz Kreisler and Myra Hess. Since reopening in 1985, the Halls has welcomed a range of artists from almost every musical genre – Jamie Cullum, The Breeders, Sir Simon Rattle, Nitin Sawhney, Paco Peña, The Tiger Lillies, Nikolai Demidenko, Kate Rusby and The Ukulele Orchestra of Great Britain – to name but a few.
